LEGION OFFICERS OF PALM BEACH FOR THE WEEK

Dr. W. J. Buck, Past District Commander, Is Installing Officer

MEAD HEADS POST

Delegation From Belle Glade Post Present for Ceremonies

Officers for this year were installed and matters of interest to ex-service men discussed at the regular meeting of the Legion post of the American Legion at the Legion pavilion Monday night. Dr. W. J. Buck, past district commander of the fifth district, was installed as officer and was accompanied from Belle Glade by a sizeable delegation of legionnaires.

Officers installed were: George Mead, commander; Abe Dobrow, vice commander; W. J. Buck, secretary; George W. Ellarbee, treasurer; T. C. Clements, finance officer; and A. K. Kelly, sergeant-at-arms.

The executive committee is composed of Abe Dobrow, H. L. Lapp, retired commander, and George W. Ellarbee, C. A. Bailey and W. J. Denton.

H. L. Lapp, retired commander, opened the meeting and various affairs were discussed after which he turned the gavel over to Dr. W. J. Buck for the installation ceremony. In a brief talk preceding the installation Dr. Buck lauded the principles, ideals and objectives of the American Legion, declaring that "I've always been proud to have been associated with the American Legion. We are members of an organization, the membership of which is closer to us than any other organization. It is a place where you can find the help you need during the worst of times. We as legionnaires have since the Armistice been primarily interested in these things which make for peace, which make for the betterment of our community and for the betterment of the world. We are a better lot in which to live for our buddies, their wives and children."

Enter New Deal
Following the installation ceremony Mead gave a brief talk in which he declared that he hoped legionnaires of the post would carry their responsibilities to the post and community. "We are entering a new deal," he said in referring to the recently organized Legion home, "and it is up to us to try to live up to the ideals of the Legion. With the help of the members in attendance at meetings and in the various activities of the year, we can make good on our promises and live up to the coming month."

Mead declared he would continue the practice of last year in having the post commander, the adjutant and one member of the membership committee to handle the Legion home. The commander and adjutant, together with George C. McFarley, will constitute a committee to handle the children's clinic project which is seeking the construction of a building on the Legion grounds for giving attention to crippled children. The post endorsed the golf course project which is being considered and receiving the sponsorship of the Rotary Club.

Merchants of Pahokee plan tonight to present a petition to the Town Council asking that licenses on circuses and the like be located to the former level. In this action they are only reflecting the sentiment of merchants in the smaller towns add cities throughout the state. Traveling shows and circuses in general, are the put and take kind. They put up a tent and take all they can get from the community. No one regrets good clean amusement for the kiddies or their elders, but it is hard for the tax-paying merchant who takes the lean seasons with the good to see any particular good in a show which comes when times are good, is afar off when times are not so good. Traveling amusement institutions would be welcomed as winter guests if they would settle down and spend the winter, but their hop, skip and jumping lither and whither a dollar or two shines, puts them in a class with the average run of rackets playing the easy money lanes of the north in the summer, and chasing loose change in Florida in the winter.

Pay days are important, individually and collectively. They present opportunity for the employer to catch up and perhaps prepare to some extent for the time intervening between the present and the next pay day. Pay days bring pleasure to the heart of the merchant because they present an opportunity to move goods, the prime object of his being in business.

Last Saturday was pay day for many in this section. It put thousands of dollars into circulation for the time being unless restricted in spending among those receiving beneficial legal tender.

Merchants and employees look forward to pay days. They know that when a pay day comes, a lot of people will be happy, more care-free than during the latter part of the period preceding the passing out of pay envelopes.

Even a circus can sense an impending pay day, or perhaps they are more astute and have other ways of finding out when pay days come along and schedule their set-ups accordingly.

FREE SPENDING

Free spending was very much in vogue some years back. The thoughts of it are conducive to headaches for most of us. The lean years which have followed have contributed to what we believe to be our store of knowledge. We wouldn't do it over again that way. Which, of course, is contrary to human nature. Barnes made a great and true statement about people one time. He also knew that the public likes to be fooled. The big claims make a living fooling people. Fooled during the boom, we are now paying the price of our confusion with interest compounded.

Your Uncle Sammel this year starts on a spending spree. It is the greatest spending spree in the history of the country during peace times. One thing we should be thankful for, and that is that it is not a spending spree to carry on such a thing as war. It is rather a spending spree for the benefit of the U. S. Inc. As such it is calculated to bring back some of the prosperity which vanished during the sojourn in the nation's capital of a race of men commonly known as Republicans.

The government will seek to borrow ten billion dollars during the next six months. A two-year spending plan will dispose of more than sixteen billion dollars of more or less receipts aggregating some over seven million dollars to leave a deficit for the two-year period of nine and one-quarter billion dollars. That will bring the public debt up to a new high of almost thirty-two billion dollars.

Back in boom days those figures would not have been especially impressive in Florida. Today they are too big to comprehend for most of us. What we can understand in a simple way, however, is that of this great sum of money eleven and one-half billion dollars will be expended to "further the recovery program."

The period of enormous expenditures, according to the President, is scheduled to come to a close with the end of the fiscal year on June 30, 1939. After that "he expects that the government will be able to function on its own. Certainly that is the hope of every fair-minded citizen, too. In the meantime something important ought to have been accomplished. Impending figures like that ought to effectively rope and hog-tie prosperity. Whether they will or not remains to be seen. In circulation generally, a half a dozen or so billion dollars ought to go pretty well around to the hundred and twenty-three million people in these United States.

Stars of Film and Sports World In 'The Prizefighter and the Lady'

Myrna Loy, Max Baer, Dempsey and Others in Thrilling Picture

Myrna Loy, Max Baer, Primo Carnera, Jack Dempsey, Walter Huston and Otto Kruger comprise the distinguished group of actors and sporting personalities gathered together by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for "The Prizefighter and the Lady," a gripping story of the prize ring which starts Sunday at the attraction at the Everglades Theatre.

Miss Loy, last seen in "Night Flight" and "Penthouse," has recently established herself as one of the most popular and outstanding of the screen's feminine stars. Baer, challenger for the heavyweight championship of the world, and generally acknowledged as the most colorful fighter in the prize ring today, makes his first screen appearance in this picture and has been a virile exponent of the new vogue in leading men.

Battles with Challenger Carnera, heavyweight champion of the world, also faces the camera for the first time in his ten-round fight with Baer in "The Prizefighter and the Lady." The giant heavyweight's battle with his challenger before the time set for their real fight is without precedent and has aroused the interest of the entire sport world. Their film bout is refereed by none other than the famous Dempsey.

The plot of the new film, based on a story by Frances Marion, depicts the career of a hard-boiled youngster who rises from the pollution of "bombers" in a speakeasy to that of a fighter of championship caliber. The sensational scenes of the picture, the colorful sports background, the romantic interlude with the night-club entertainer and the difficulties placed in the way of the fighter by a racketeer gunman provide the elements of what is described as the most realistic and absorbing story of the prize ring ever to reach the screen.

Walter Huston plays the role of the booze-ridden, down-at-the-heel fight manager who recognizes in their championship material and trains him for his fights. The part, a "natural" for Huston, marks another step forward in his actor's brilliant career. Prominent roles are also filled by Otto Kruger as the racketeer, Vince Barnett, Robert McWade, Muriel Evans and Jean Howard.

Score of internationally famous ex-champions and their contemporaries appear in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature to add realism to the great prize fight sequences. Among these great fighters of yesterday are Jess Willard, James Jeffries, Frank Moran, Joe Rivers and Billy Papke. "The Prizefighter and the Lady" was directed by W. S. Van Dyke, responsible for such photoplay successes as "Paran the Ape Man" and "Trader Horn."

SOUTH BAY

COMEDY ABLY PRESENTED BY YOUNG PEOPLE

SOUTH BAY, Jan. 10.—The play, a three-act comedy entitled "You Can Depend On Me," which was presented by the young people of South Bay under the auspices of the P-T-A. and directed by Irene Overcast, proved to be a huge success and may be repeated within the near future. Bill Willis played the part of an elderly neurotic who constantly imagined himself suffering from an incurable malady in a masterly manner. Alyce Willis was his charming and demure niece. Louise Rawle enacted the part of the waitress at the Summer Resort, who saw, heard and knew everything and made it a point to "twist" the news. Vivian Shepherd and Frank Willis were the young married couple wildly in love but in the throes of proper adjustment to each other. Sax Maxwell was the wise-cracking looker at these marital difficulties. Noel McAllister took the part of the hotel doctor. Edith Willis was the fortune hunting young beauty and Eric Hartline and Meade Willis male guests in love with the two unattached young ladies.
